84 PICTURES ARE SOLD FOR $85,215

Since 4/17/17
A Jacque Brings the Top
Price, $8,200—All the Paintings Modern Except One.

A WEISSENBRUCH, $4,700

Rosa Bonheur's "Sheep and Landscape" Fetches $3,800, and Du-pre's "Morning" $2,700.

Eighty-four pictures, with one exception modern paintings, property of Mrs.
Harold Thorne, Edson Bradley, Mrs.
Florence Macy Sutton, estates of Isidor Wormser, F. L. Loring, Leon Mandel, and others, sold at the Plaza last evening, under the auspices of the American Art Association, for $85,215. "The Return to the Fold," by Charles Emile
Jacque, brought the highest price, $8,
200, going to Seaman, agent. Adolph Schreyer's "An Arab Horseman at the Fountain," was sold for $5,000 to J.
Clinton Spencer. A Dutch picture Weissenbruch's "Landscape in Holland," brought the third highest price, going to M. Knoedler & Co. for $4,700. "Sheep and Landscape," by Rosa Bonheur, took fourth place, going to Herman Katz for $3,800.

There was not a large gathering, as the Plaza audiences for American Art association sales go, and the Schreyer made the most exciting sale of the evening, the bids going up with quick jumps amid buzzes of interest from the audience.

Thomas E. Kirby, from the auctioneer's desk at the opening of the sale, said that the collection, coming from different people, presented an unusual standard of excellence and variety.
Many of the pictures came from well-known collections dispersed several years ago, among them the Mary J.
Morgan and the A. T. Stewart collections. A number of the prices paid were lower than those for which they had previously sold.

This evening the larger and more important pictures will be sold, including some important Schreyers and the remarkable collection of twenty-four examples of the work of the French impressionist, Claude Monet, brought together by the late James F. Sutton.

$432,300 IS PAID FOR 87 PAINTINGS

Since 4/18/17
An Alma-Tadema, "The Baths of Caracalla," Brings the Highest Price, $19,000.

$17,000 FOR GREAT MARIS

Claude Monet's 24 Pictures Sold for $161,000, One, "Vue de Bor-dighera," for $15,900.

Eighty-seven pictures brought $432,300
in the big sale of paintings belonging to different persons and estates, under the auspices of the American Art Association, at the Plaza last evening. The last picture of the sale an Alma-Tadema, "The Baths of Caracalla," brought the highest price, $19,000, going to Reinhardt & Son.

A great Jakob Maris, "View of Amsterdam," brought the second highest price, going to the Holland Galleries for $17,000. This fine picture belonged to the Widener collection in Philadelphia, and was only deposited from its position when Mr. Widener decided to devote himself only to the old masters.

The third highest price was $18,400,
given for "Sunset," by George Inness.

The fourth highest price was $15,900, paid by James Hastings for "Vue de Bordighera," one of the Monets, the twenty-four pictures by the great French impressionist whose disposition, was a sale within a sale last night, and a special feature by itself.

These twenty-four pictures by Claude
Monet, brought together by the late James F. Sutton during the last thirty years, sold for $161,000.

Sixteen of the Monets went to the Durand-Ruels, and there were only two names of private individuals given among the purchasers. There was a big audience, including all the prominent people in the city interested in pictures.
When the first Monet was put up it was evident that these were the pictures in which the audience was most interested.
There was applause when those bringing the highest prices were sold and the selling was exciting. The bids came so fast from different would-be purchasers

Mr. Thomas E. Kirby, in the auctioneer's desk had to stop once or twice to take breath, as the bids ran away with themselves and gave him no time to take hold of them.

There was one amusing incident when a lovely iridescent Monet, ("Le Bassin aux Nymphéas, Giverny,") a pond with lilies, the line of whose green-bordered shore appeared at the top of the picture, the people in the audience, not near enough to get a clear view, thought it had been hung upside down. There was much laughter for a few minutes. This gave great pleasure to a few anti-impressionists in the audience, who did not like any of the Monets.

"That's right," said one of these groups, "let them sell it that way. It is better upside down than any other." Comparatively few fine Alma-Tademas have been sold at public sale in this country. The American Art Association, having sold only twelve, and only four of these of first importance.

The Alma-Tadema bringing the big price is a beautiful picture, a large one, 60 inches by 31 inches. There are three figures of young women on a marble bench, in the foreground back of them are the baths, and there is much fine architectural detail.

Following are the names of the pictures, artists, purchaser and prices. The greater number of pictures went to agents or galleries.

COLLECTORS BATTLE FOR SCHREYER WORK

His "Arab Horseman" Sold
for $5,000 in Plaza
Ballroom

Eighty-four paintings by artists of distinction, culled from collections formed by the late Isidor Wormser, Harold Thorne, Edson Bradley, James F. Sutton, F. L. Loring and Leon Mandel, brought a total of $85,215 last night at the opening session of the sale by Thomas E. Kirby, of the American Art Association, held in the ball room of the Hotel Plaza. Many persons well known in society and the art world were present.

The keenest competition in the bidding was for "The Return to the Fold," by Jacque, one of five of his canvases in the sale. Starting with a bid of $1,000, it ran up to $5,000 in one minute, and in less than two minutes it was sold to W. W. Seaman, as agent, for $8,200, the top price of the evening. This canvas, which is called a sterling Jacque of his best period, has for its subject a flock of sheep crowding into the doorway of a stable at eventide, while a robust shepherdess, crook in hand, stands by on watch that none of her flock may fail to be safely housed. Another of Jacque's pictures, "The Basse-Cour," went to the same buyer for $1,100.

"An Arab Horseman at the Fountain"—a Schreyer—caused another battle royal in the bidding, between four or five collectors. It was started at $500 and sold to J. Clinton Spencer for $5,000. Knoedler & Co. gave $4,700 for "Landscape in Holland," by Weissenbruch, and $1,400 for "Holland Landscape," by de Bock.

The first bid for Rosa Bonheur's "Sheep and Landscape," from Tedesco Freres, Paris, was $500. In less than a minute it ran up to $3,800, for which it was sold to Herman Katz, Captain Marion McMillan's bid of $3,000 was the highest for Bouguereau's "Reverie by the Sea," from the Mandel collection, and Henry Schultheis gave $2,200 for "Accepting the Challenge," by Munkacsy, from the Loring collection.

24 MONETS AROUSE SPIRITED BIDDING

Canvas of Alma-Tadema Brings $19,000—Evening's Total Is $432,300

With a total of $517,515, the sale of 171 paintings from the Wormser and other collections, conducted by the American Art Association at the Hotel Plaza, ended last night. It goes on record, according to Thomas E. Kirby, who sold the pictures, as the most successful sale for the number of paintings sold ever held in this city. Last night's total was $432,300.

No such enthusiasm has been witnessed for years. Standing room was at a premium in the big hall, and the audience, made up principally of persons seldom seen at auction sales of art objects, frequently broke into applause when the bids ran high. At times the excitement was so marked that the bidding ran ahead of the auctioneer and he was obliged to stop to obtain order.

"The Baths of Caracalla," a large canvas by Alma-Tadema, and the last picture in the catalogue, brought the $19,000. The bidding started at $5,000 and it quickly ran into five figures, travelling by $1,000 and $2,000. H. Reinhardt & Son were the purchasers. The same buyers gave $16,400 for an Inness canvas, "Sunset," which Mr. Bradley, its last owner, bought from the artist. Seventeen thousand dollars was paid by the Holland Galleries for "View of Amsterdam," by Maris, a Dutch painter.

Bidding on Monets
The feature of this final session of the sale was the bidding on the series of twenty-four paintings by Claude Monet. Durand-Ruel & Co. seemed determined to obtain the entire series. They took seventeen of them, but in a spirited bidding bout between their representatives and James Hastings for "Vue de Bordighera" Hastings's bid of $15,500 took the prize.

Durand, Ruel & Co. gave $15,000 for "La Seine à Bessancourt en Hiver," one of Monet's best examples of landscape painting, but they lost "Le Bassin aux Nymphéas, Giverny" to Arthur Meeker, of Chicago, who bid $6,600 for the canvas. This picture caused a sensation when hung, for by reason of the mirage and reflection on the water it appeared as if it were upside down. The subject is the surface of a pond, with floating lilies upon it. Another Monet that brought $10,000 was "Matin sur la Seine, Giverny," which Otto Bernet, as agent, obtained.

"Les Bœux Dans le Marecage," a fine example of Corot's work, went to the Knoedlers for $12,700. The last owner of the picture purchased it originally from the Knoedlers. The same buyers paid $10,200 for a Daubigny—"The Edge of the Pond," from the Petit Galleries, Paris.

Average About $6,000
The total received for the Monet paintings—$160,200—shows that the average for each picture was more than $6,000.

Eighty-one Canvases Bring Good Prices at American Art Association Sale.

JACQUE'S BRINGS $3,200

Highest Figure Is Paid for the "Sheepfold" at the Plaza Hotel.

What is regarded as one of the most important picture sales of the season began last night in the Plaza Hotel ballroom under the auspices of the American Art Association before a crowded and eager audience. The prices were good, but not sensational, the chief paintings being reserved for to-night's session.

The leading figure was $3,200, paid by a buyer represented by W. W. Seaman, agent, for the "Return to the Sheepfold," by C. E. Jacque. "An Arab Horseman at the Fountain," by Schreyer, went to J. Clinton Spencer for $5,000, and Knoedler & Co. gave $4,700 for a Dutch landscape by Weissenbruch, whose pictures seldom appear in American auctions.

The total for the eighty-four pictures sold was $85,215. The list of pictures, with titles and names of buyers, follows:

New High Record for Artist's Work Won by His "Bordighera View."

$161,600 FOR HIS GROUP

Alma-Tadema's "Baths of Caracalla" Fetches $19,000—Furious Bidding.

Last night's session of the picture sale conducted in the Plaza Hotel by the American Art Association proved highly successful, with a large attendance, much excited bidding and the establishment of new picture records.

The highest price of the evening was $19,000, paid Henry Reinhardt & Son for Alma-Tadema's "Baths of Caracalla." The chief excitement of the evening, however, was in regard to the group of Monets collected by the late James F. Sutton. The bidding for these was so quick and furious that confusion at times prevailed. One picture had to be sold twice, two bidders claiming it.

James Hastings gave $15,900 for the "Bordighera View," and this is now the world's record for a Monet sold at auction.

Two other Monet landscapes each sold for more than the $9,300, which was the former record, established in the Hugo Reisinger sale. This would indicate that the appreciation of the school of impressionism is now general.

There are still, however, some philistines, and some of them were in the audience last night. It was evident they could not quite understand Monet and there was a roar of laughter when the "Lily Pond" appeared upon the platform, the audience mistakenly imagining that the picture was upside down. It sold to Arthur Meeker of Chicago for $6,600. The twenty-four Monets brought $161,600.

The total for the evening was $432,300, making a grand total for this memorable sale of $317,515. The list of pictures, with buyers and prices, follows:

CONDITIONS OF SALE

1. Any bid which is merely a nominal or fractional advance may be rejected by the auctioneer, if, in his judgment, such bid would be likely to affect the sale injuriously.

2. The highest bidder shall be the buyer, and if any dispute arise between two or more bidders, the auctioneer shall either decide the same or put up for re-sale the lot so in dispute.

3. Payment shall be made of all or such part of the purchase money as may be required, and the names and addresses of the purchasers shall be given immediately on the sale of every lot, in default of which the lot so purchased shall be immediately put up again and re-sold.

Payment of that part of the purchase money not made at the time of sale shall be made within ten days thereafter, in default of which the undersigned may either continue to hold the lots at the risk of the purchaser and take such action as may be necessary for the enforcement of the sale, or may at public or private sale, and without other than this notice, re-sell the lots for the benefit of such purchaser, and the deficiency (if any) arising from such re-sale shall be a charge against such purchaser.

4. Delivery of any purchase will be made only upon payment of the total amount due for all purchases at the sale.

Deliveries will be made on sales days between the hours of 9 A. M. and 1 P. M., and on other days—except holidays—between the hours of 9 A. M. and 5 P. M.

Delivery of any purchase will be made only at the American Art Galleries, or other place of sale, as the case may be, and only on presenting the bill of purchase.

Delivery may be made, at the discretion of the Association, of any purchase during the session of the sale at which it was sold.

5. Shipping, boxing or wrapping of purchases is a business in which the Association is in no wise engaged, and will not be performed by the Association for purchasers. The Association will, however, afford to purchasers every facility for employing at current and reasonable rates carriers and packers; doing so, however, without any assumption of responsibility on its part for the acts and charges of the parties engaged for such service.

6. Storage of any purchase shall be at the sole risk of the purchaser. Title passes upon the fall of the auctioneer's hammer, and thereafter, while the Association will exercise due caution in caring for and delivering such purchase, it will not hold itself responsible if such purchase be lost, stolen, damaged or destroyed.

Storage charges will be made upon all purchases not removed within ten days from the date of the sale thereof.

7. Guarantee is not made either by the owner or the Association of the correctness of the description, genuineness or authenticity of any lot, and no sale will be set aside on account of any incorrectness, error of cataloguing, or any imperfection not noted. Every lot is on public exhibition one or more days prior to its sale, after which it is sold "as is" and without recourse.

The Association exercises great care to catalogue every lot correctly, and will give consideration to the opinion of any trustworthy expert to the effect that any lot has been incorrectly catalogued, and, in its judgment, may either sell the lot as catalogued or make mention of the opinion of such expert, who thereby would become responsible for such damage as might result were his opinion without proper foundation.

1—CHARGING BULL

Panel: Height, 9 inches; width, 8 inches

A CHARACTERISTIC and highly finished example. A white bull, marked with a large black spot on the shoulder, is seen, head erect and tail in the air, jumping over a barrier. The movement suggests a spirited charge of the animal. The setting is composed of a bit of roadway, with distance beyond, and a sky with gray clouds.

Mrs. C. M. Burghard

Panel: Height, 10 inches; length, 14½ inches

SEATED on a bench against the bulwark and netting of one of the Channel steamers is a cardinal, in red robes and hat, who is seemingly finding it a difficult matter to cross the Channel and maintain his dignity at the same time. In one hand he holds a smelling bottle and in the other his breviary closed, with one finger inserted to mark the place, while on the bench beside him is his traveling rug, and on the deck at his feet his open traveling bag, whose fittings show a variety of glass receptacles containing, doubtless, remedies for distress of mind and body. Farther along on the deck at the left is his liveried servant who, while leaning over the rail, still holds faithfully in his hand the cardinal's umbrella. The sea, seen beyond, shows rather rough weather, and spray is being blown over the vessel's side.

A MASS of shipping in mid-stream, in the right-hand half of the picture, shows two fishing boats with their sails up and, a little back of them, a large square-rigged vessel with black hull. On the left are two or three fishing boats balancing this more important mass on the right. The sky is filled with white and gray clouds, and the water shows a general tone of gray. SOME sort of a party has been going on in an apartment which shows on the left, over a stairway coming up from below, a platform on which are some musicians and women. The party has ended in a quarrel, as shown by the attitude of the three principal figures in the picture. A man is half prostrate on the ground near a broken chair, gripping with his hand his side where he has been hurt. Another man, upright, and eager for still more fighting, is in the middle of the room, and near him is a young woman who is wringing her hands. There are other broken chairs and the stairway railing has been smashed as well. At the head of the steps people are seen coming up to find out what has happened.

A fine-looking chieftain, wrapped in his white burnous, is seated nearby and a follower is lying at ease on the ground. The group is skilfully composed and, with the arrangement of red and white and the gray greens of the foliage of the olive grove in the background, makes a very effective picture.

Panel: Height, 17½ inches; length, 21½ inches

THIS canvas shows the artist's home in Barbizon on the outskirts of the Forest of Fontainebleau, and is painted in warm tints, with the drawing of the buildings, trees and other elements carefully done, as was the habit of Rousseau when making the first painting for a picture. Among the browns and greens, which are the predominating color notes, the red skirt and white bodice of a woman passing along the roadway give agreeable contrasting notes. Over all is a sky of qualified blue and gray.

On the right are groups of trees, and on the left are other trees, farther away and not rising so high against the sky as those on the right. The horizon is placed low so that there is a broad expanse of sky. This shows a unified, luminous ensemble of qualified blue, gradating into warmer tints in the lower part, where are a few notes of color—slight touches of yellow and red. A. Rudert, Agt.

THE scene is laid in a narrow street in Rome, with the wall of a house on the right where, standing by a green-shuttered window which is partly opened, is a young man playing a mandolin, while at the right of the picture are several companions, who accompany him with guitars and other instruments. A traveler who has lain down to rest, with his dog at his feet, in the roadway, seems not to be disturbed in the least by the events about him. The effect is in moonlight, which illumines the white wall of the house at the left, while the right of the picture is in shadow.

73—THE CHRISTENING FESTIVITIES

John Leary

Height, $29\frac{1}{4}$ inches; length, 44 inches

A PARTY of friends and relatives are here seen assembled in a finely decorated apartment on the occasion of the christening of a baby, who is held in the arms of a nurse with red bodice and cap, standing near a great fireplace at the left of the picture. A servant in the middle portion is carrying in a large tray with glasses of wine, and at the right, on a circular seat, are a priest, a soldier, and several ladies. Some other men and women, and several children, complete the party. This elaborate subject, with its different groups, and costumes of varied colorings, is well handled and displays cleverness both of composition and execution.

A PARTY of men are traveling over a snow-covered country in Russia in the early evening, as indicated by the rising moon which is seen in the upper left of the canvas. The whole fore-part of the picture is occupied by one of the sleighs, containing three travelers, with a four-horse team, driven by a coachman who is standing up. Other sleighs are disappearing beyond over a hill and into the distance. The horses, the sleighs, and the costumes of the passengers and coachman are all in quiet colors which harmonize well with the sober tone of the snow. The evening sky shows dull tints of gray with some notes of rosy light.

THIS composition presents the figures of three men, one seated at the dining table, who seems to be a man of business or a capitalist; another, on the left, who is a soldier with black tunic and red trousers; and the third, who is a priest with a costume of violet and red. It seems to depict a reunion of three brothers whose occupations are all very different and who, when united in a little family party, seem to express very different opinions about whatever subject they may have been discussing. The scene is placed in a well-furnished room and details of every description are carefully yet broadly rendered.

In the middle portion two white horses form the central point of interest, although there is fine movement and action in the others, notably in one who is climbing over a brother horse that has tripped and fallen to the ground. The landscape setting, consisting of a simple plain and the sky which shows evening clouds, is cast in dark tones, so that the horses themselves receive concentrated light, thus producing an effect which impresses at first glance.

SOME of the best of Verestchagin's pictures are found among his large, but not the very largest, canvases, and "The Window of Selim-Shisti's Monument" is one of them. The great Mogul Akbar, the most powerful Indian chief, erected this monument over the remains of his friend and counsellor, Selim-Shisti, a man who led a most holy life, and whose memory is still held in reverence by all the Mohammedans of India. Pilgrims come to the monument and converse there with descendants of the saint, who perform religious offices though without being themselves in the class known as "Holy Men." It is such a scene as this that Verestchagin chose for the subject of his picture. The figures, all men clad in white and with white turbans, are seated, chatting and gesticulating, on a marble bench which forms the base of the temple wall. Four of the men are in a group at the right of the picture and two others on the left. Behind and above the larger group is a wonderful "window" (in the Oriental sense of the word) filled with white marble tracery, carved through so that light filters inside through the interstices, and a smaller window of the same design is behind the group of two. The walls rise high above the figures and all the upper part of the picture is in shadow, not deep shadow for the glare of sunshine reflects into it. Below, where the figures are, the sun gleams. It is an extraordinary transcription of the Orient and the painting of the marble carving is a most remarkable technical achievement.

Otto Bernet, Agt. Height, $18\frac{1}{2}$ inches; length, $22\frac{1}{2}$ inches

A GROUP of two cows and a calf, all close together, and a farm dog close beside them. The cow most prominent in the group has a coat of white with reddish spots and is lying down; the other cow, a black one, standing beyond her, reaches her head forward so that her muzzle touches the shoulder of the spotted cow; the calf, dun color with a white spot, is close in between them. The setting for the group is a level pasture-field and overhead is a sky with clouds of qualified gray and a little space of tempered blue in the upper left portion.

THIS "Swamp in the Moors" is a justly celebrated Rousseau. It was formerly in the Paris collection of M. Laurent-Richard and has been praised by critics in this country when it has been publicly exhibited, as it was at New York, in 1898, when it belonged to the late William H. Fuller. It shows a brilliant phase of the great landscape painter's art and, as such, possesses much individual charm. The composition shows a stretch of moors and fens, with a low horizon and distant glimpse of the sea, where several white specks denote sailing vessels riding in a gleam of sunlight. A bog is depicted in the central foreground, the marshy waters extending, between banks of irregular shape, into the middle distance. The entire landscape is painted in fine, restrained, warm tints, accented by tempered whites. Overhead, a very beautiful sky of tender, pearly grays, is broken, in its central portion, by cloud masses of exquisitely qualified white.

135—BISMARCK

Height, 38 inches; width, 34½ inches

FRANZ VON LENBACH painted a number of portraits of Bismarck, finding interest in the features of the great German statesman and apparently delighting in portraying them under varying aspects. This is a half-length life-size portrait, helmet on head and the costume consisting of a military coat and great-coat lined with fur. The head is turned to the spectator's left and shows in its expression the vigorous character of the subject, as well as a certain quiet repose. The general tone of the canvas is made of subdued color and the face, by being fully lighted, concentrates the interest of the spectator.

136—THE PROPHECY

Henry Phelps Case

Height, 30 inches; length, 39½ inches

THE foreground shows the top of a hill, on high ground, overlooking the blue waters of the sea of Galilee, with a white-sailed boat or two skimming along on its surface. The figure of Christ, in a white robe with his hair flowing over his shoulders, is seen seated on the high ground, his back to the spectator, and the attitude suggesting reflection and thought of the future. Across the expanse of the sea appears a line of hills and above is a southern sky of qualified blue with a few clouds.

“Then began he to upbraid the cities wherein most of his mighty works were done, because they repented not: ‘Woe unto thee, Chorazin! woe unto thee, Bethsaida! for if the mighty works which were done in you, had been done in Tyre and Sidon, they would have repented long ago in sackcloth and ashes. But I say unto you, it shall be more tolerable for Tyre and Sidon at the day of judgment than for you. And thou, Capernaum, which art exalted unto heaven, shalt be brought down to hell, for if the mighty works which have been done in thee, had been done in Sodom, it would have remained unto this day. But I say unto you, that it shall be more tolerable for the land of Sodom in the day of judgment than for thee.’” (Matt. xi. 20-24.)

IN a river, which occupies the foreground and stretches away from the point of view of the spectator into the middle distance, a fleet of boats is seen at anchor. All sails are lowered and the hulls and bare masts are reflected in the water. On the right, in the immediate foreground, a large white row-boat is moored near a building on the bank. On the shore at the left are houses, trees and figures, while overhead there is a blue, clouded sky. The picture is painted under an effect of sunlight which comes from the left.

As its title indicates, this is a seashore view, and it is taken from the tops of the grass-covered Normandy cliffs. Herbage, ripe and dry in the autumn season, and a wind-swept tree, with its branches mostly bare, diversify the foreground while the blue sea, occupying the middle distance, forms a color contrast to the yellow and pink of the dried weeds and wild flowers. On the right of the canvas a rock juts out into the sea and overhead is a sky, mostly blue, with clouds at the horizon.

PATCHES of broken, snow-covered ice are seen floating in the river, which fills the whole lower half of the canvas. On the left is a portion of the bank, with trees. In the middle distance, dimly seen, are the farther shore and hills rising beyond. THIS picture is a brilliant and very characteristic example of Monet's marines, with rocks, in which he found full play in recording his impressions of color. It shows one of the well-known rock formations on the Normandy coast, at Etretat, in which the rock is a sort of natural archway, the sea running through the opening. The water, in this instance, shows fine, varied tints of green while on the rock there are pink, gray and blue. Above the expanse of the ocean, lying pale green in the sunlight, is a sky composed mostly of floating white clouds. In the right upper portion are some spaces of qualified blue.

A LANDSCAPE of rolling country with a narrow, steep-sided valley, or ravine, opening out in the foreground, where a stream flows through the gap. Rocks and herbage are depicted with a fine and discriminating variety of color tints and the stream—blue, with little crests of foam appearing as the water flows through its stony bed—reflects a narrow space of the sky with some clouds floating, at the top of the canvas. The landscape is illuminated by sunlight falling from the left and effective shadow masses, as in the ravine, emphasize the force of the puissant color.

THIS is a beautiful example of the landscape painting of Claude Monet. The elements are very simple: a stream winding through snow-covered flatlands, a group of trees in the center middle distance, and a line of blue hills beyond, with a whitish gray sky above. It is truthfully observed and the scene is depicted with a just perception of values. The color scheme shows a variety of tints that appeal to the vision of a painter but that in nature would offer to the untrained observer little but monotony in an uninspiring eyesweep of winter gray.

A TEAM of four horses, with a driver mounted on the third one from the right, is depicted drawing a heavily loaded cart up a hilly road. The wheels sink almost up to the hubs in the mud and clay and the horses are exerting all their strength to pull the load. The team is pulling away from the spectator so that the horses are seen in rear view and the action is well given in their backs and hind legs. This group occupies practically the whole of the canvas, although, on the left, in a much darker portion of the picture, caused by the sky being heavily obscured with clouds, there are a horseman with his gun slung over his back, and another team and cart. The light, concentrated on the horses and the load on the cart in the foreground, produces by contrast with the darker portion of the picture a striking ensemble.

THE waters of a canal occupy the foreground, where are seen several broad-beamed boats lying tied up, while in the middle distance a bridge crosses from the buildings on one side of the canal to the other. A red-roofed house and a sturdy church tower are prominent objects on the left, while a block of buildings and a mass of trees form the principal elements on the right. The foreground and most of the middle distance are in shadow, and sunlight illumines the buildings of the town that are seen farther away. Overhead is an impressive sky composed of great masses of gray and white clouds with a space or two of positive blue in the upper portion where the clouds are darkest. In the fine treatment of the sky, the broad handling of the masses of buildings composing the town, and in the general arrangement of the whole composition, a distinguished and impressive effect is produced. In the distance at the left, where a line of trees borders the pasture, are some other cows. The sky overhead, with cumulus clouds and some spaces of blue, is most impressive.

R. Rudert, Agt.

A DUTCH interior with a life-size group of a mother and her child. The woman, who is seated in side view to the spectator with her head inclined to the right, is feeding the baby which she holds in her lap with a spoon. On the table in front of her is a dish and a green earthen jug. The walls of the cottage, the clothing and cap of the mother, as well as her face, hands and arms, are painted in rather low tones, while the baby's white cap and kerchief, placed about the middle of the composition, form a higher and, consequently, prominent note. Both mother and child are of the home-keeping, bred-to-the-soil type, and interest is found in their truthful depiction by the artist.

Signed at the lower right.

171—THE BATHS OF CARACALLA

Height, 60 inches; width, 37½ inches

THIS very important work of Alma-Tadema may well be considered to resume his best qualities as a painter and also as a historical artist. In the foreground, on a marble bench, three figures of young women are seated, while directly behind them appears the water of the swimming pool, in which are a number of bathers. On the farther side of the pool, which is lined with ornamental marble walls, are other bathers, most of them men who are standing about while a group of youthful athletes are plunging, one after the other, into the pool. On the left of this group, in the middle portion of the picture, are some young girls crowned with roses and playing on pipes, while still farther away there are other personages, including a serving man, who is holding back a door to make way for the passage of some notable, in dress of white and red, who is about to leave the baths. The elaborate architectural details in the upper portion of the picture and the accessories, elsewhere, all give interest to this remarkable presentation of the manners and customs of a period renowned in history.

Purchased from Scott & Fowles.

From the collection of the late LEON MANDEL.

PARTICULARS UNRESTRICTED SALE AMERICAN ART ASSOCIATION. JANUARY 16TH & 17TH.
1917.

No. 4 Pasini, we bought for $275.00. This picture brought in the Morgan sale $1,025.

No. 5 Meissonier. There must be some mixup about this picture, as we have a picture of the same subject which we are told comes from the Pope Collection. We have not had time to investigate it.

No. 9 Troyon. Nice in color. We were the last bidders on this.

No. 10 Diaz, looked very doubtful.

No. 11 Diaz originally came from Mr. A. Kohn. Rather dark.

No. 18 Murphy. We bought this picture. There is a good demand here for this artists works.

No. 21 Madrazo. This picture brought $2,500 in the Stewart Collection. There is absolutely no demand for this artists works here.

de Beek. We have a number on hand and are trying to sell ours and do not care to buy others.

Bouguereau. You will notice that a number of these have come in the market. They sell fairly well but we do not want to buy any.

No. 38 Breton, also a number of his pictures have been in the market. This one brought $2,550 in the Johnston Sale.

No. 39 Jules Dupre. Rather heavy but good commercial picture.

No. 40 Rousseau. Sketchy. We have no catalogue of the Isidore Blech 1896 Sale in which the catalogue says this picture was in, and would like to have one.

No. 46 Schreyer. This brought $3,100 in the Morgan Collection. There is a demand here for good Schreyers at reasonable prices.

- No. 50 Joseph Bail. His pictures sell with difficulty. We do not want any more.
- No. 51 Vibert, is also a hard seller.
- No. 58 Marie Dieterle was not a particularly pleasing picture.
- No. 59 Harpignies was good and cheap/ but we have enough of this artist.
- No. 60 Jacque. We sold this picture to Mr. Loring in 1896 for $2,200.
- No. 65 Weissenbruch. A splendid picture. We bought it and sold it with 10% profit to Mr. Mallinckreddt.
- No. 78 de Beek. We had to buy this picture on account of the low price, $1400. You will remember it was originally 11108 bought from Biesing for 7,000 fl., and sold to Mr. Baruch for $5,000.
- No. 88 Boldini, was a very nice picture but $2,800 was high for it. It brought $1500.00 in the Johnston Collection.
- No. 89 Diaz. I did not like.
- Nos. 90 and 91 Diaz were fair, but we do not seem to have any luck or demand with figure pieces by Diaz.
- No. 92 Jacque. Small commercial picture which we sold through O'Brien of Chicago.
- No. 93 Millet. We bought it for $5,000 and sold it to a client. Formerly in the Alexander Young Collection.
- No. 94 Corot. You know this picture. We did not bid on it.
- No. 96 Decamps. We bought this picture for $2,450. It has Durand-Ruel's number on the back, 809, and it brought $7,100 in the Henry Sale in 1907. We are hiding this picture as we think it ought to be worth a great deal more. What would be its chances in Paris?
- No. 97 Corot. We did not particularly care for this.
- No. 98 Mauve. We were the last bidders on this picture.

- No. 100 Mauve Water Celer was not genuine.
- No. 101 Israels. It was in such bad condition, and as de Wild said that he would not care to restore it we did not bid on it.
- No. 102 Ceret. This picture brought $3,400 in the Johnston Collection. It was charming, brilliant and luminous, but we thought $10,000 full price for us to pay.
- No. 104 Daubigny. Very sketchy. Oehme sold this picture for $2,250.00.
- No. 105 Jules Dupre. Heavy.
- No. 106 Troyen. We did not like.
- No. 107 Dias, we did not particularly like.
- No. 108 Ceret. We originally sold this picture to Mr. A. W. Mellon in 1901, and in 1906 to Mr. H. G. Lytton for $15,000. We bought it for $12,700 and resold it immediately to John Levy.
- No. 109 Rousseau. Good picture but uninteresting in composition. It brought $7,600 in the W. H. Fuller Collection, 1898.
- No. 110 Daubigny. We bought this for ourselves for $5,000. It is a little dark but a very good picture. It brought $5,500 in the Chas. A. Dana Collection in 1898.
- No. 111 Diaz. We bought this picture for $2,600. Very cheap. It is a little thin but beautiful in color. We are hiding it.
- No. 112 Ceret. This picture brought $6,200 in the W. H. Stewart Collection in 1898. Mr. Stewart paid Ceret 500 francs for it. We thought $7,500 more than we could pay for it.
- No. 113 Van Marcke. This picture brought $3,700 in the W. H. Johnston Sale. It is very good and cheap at $3,000, the price we paid for it.
- No. 114 Troyen. When last sold in the Bonner Collection, 1900 this picture brought $8,100. It was very badly cracked, and as we restored it we did not care to bid on it.

No. 119 Schreyer, brought $8,500, which was a high price for it but it was very good. We originally bought it from Arnold & Tripp Feb., 1916, M. K. 11207.

No. 120 Jules Dupre we bought for $3,100 Joint Account with John Levy. Very good commercial picture.

. It was originally M. K. 1691, and we sold it Sept. 1879 to Mr. J. Milbank for $2,000.

No. 121 Daubigny. Very brilliant picture. Originally from Goupil, 9 Rue Chaptel and Georges Petit, 15043. We paid $10,200 and resold it with 10% profit to Mr. Mallinckrodt for the St. Louis Museum.

No. 123 Jules Dupre. In the Graves Collection, 1909 this picture brought $9,100, but it was heavy and none of us liked it.

No. 124 Cazin. Very blende in effect and attractive picture. Cehms sold this for $2,500.

No. 125 Jacque. In our opinion a copy and no good.

No. 126 Ziem, brought $1,350 in the Morgan Collection. A good little commercial picture.

No. 127 Jules Dupre, brought $7,600 in the W. H. Fuller Collection. Sold for $2,100. Very cheap, but people do not seem to want Marines.

No. 129 Clays. We sold this picture in June, 1896 for $850.00.

No. 133 Ziem. Sold by Cehms for $1,500. A mediocre commercial picture.

MONETS. They all sold remarkably well with the exception of one or two, and confidentially, it looked as if B. R. was bidding against himself so as to "best" the prices. No. 150 we bought for a gentleman who presented it to the Albright Buffalo Museum.

No. 161 Dupre. This picture brought in the Hilton Collection, 1909, $9,000.

It was a very showy commercial picture.

No. 162 Jacque. We sold this picture in April, 1897 for $2,500. It was a good commercial work.

No. 164 Jacob Maris. Very fine. We felt like bidding more than $17,000, which it brought, but we have a large stock of Dutch pictures, and owing to the war we do not seem to do anything with Holland.

No. 165 Mauve, brought $3,700 in the Powers Collection in 1899. It was early and cheap for any one who liked it.

No. 167 Schreyer, $10,000. Very good attractive composition.

No. 169 Treyen. This picture brought $16,500 in the Matthiessen Sale in 1902. It had Sedelmeyer's red stamp on the back. The signature looked very funny to me.

No. 170 Neuhuys. Very cheap for any one who liked it. We had the picture on sale here for sometime and nobody seemed to care for it. It brought $5,200 in the Jefferson Sale in 1906.

No. 171 Tadema. We bought this picture at the Bronson Sale in 1907 Joint Account with Tooth for $20,000. It is a very beautiful work, but as Tadema's are not in demand we did not give more than $19,000. Reinhardt bought it for the Libbey Toledo Museum.
